

Death by

PowerPoint®

or...

compelling personal experience...

for everyone

continual fun...

but always with a business purpose

no passive listening...

let's get working

create an experience... that people remember vividly for years engage everyone... whatever the size of the event ditch the predictable PowerPoint® presentations...

go for direct communication and involvement tangible outputs...

real follow-up actions to continue the good work
back at base

novel locations...

create the environment you want,
instead of a standard hotel take the pulse...

have feedback at any time with active polling

surprise people...

hit them with immediate action

ownership and commitment...

that lasts

Carousels for faster exchange give everyone the same level of understanding quickly and create the buzz and excitement to start up your event

high impact events

High return on investment

you spend a lot on meetings and conferences, so make sure you make a significant business return on them

High engagement

the key is engagement: typical events engage 15% at best, raise this to 95%+ technology to give everyone an active role in shaping content, views and output

Connect with customers

build in real life encounters with customers

Continuous team development integrate team building with work tasks; get things done and have fun at the same time

Hearts and minds

go beyond communication into creation, collaboration and commitment

Expand the value

Don't let your event drone on. With Quest's support you can have highly motivated people, strong buy-in and great output.

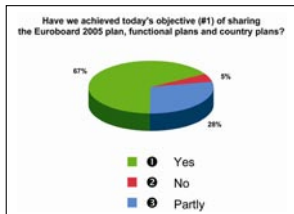

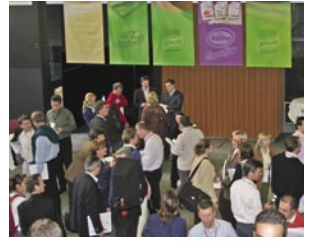

"Having been through it, I wouldn't hold a conference in any other way"

"We achieved all our objectives and more"

"Your support was highly appreciated"

"We achieved in three days what it normally takes six months to do"

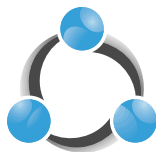

"The buy-in and commitment from everyone was palpable"

continuous polling
keep people involved all the time

great output
the good work continues afterwards
